

MAINTENANCE GUIDE | COUNTERTOPS

Maintaining natural stone surfaces is easily achieved with simple care and maintenance, and some general precautions. By following these recommendations, you will enjoy your surfaces for years to come.

CARE AND MAINTENANCE

- For daily cleaning, use a damp cloth.
- For light stains, use clear warm water and a clean white cloth. For dried stains, use a small amount of mild soap diluted with water and a non-abrasive scrub pad.
- For more difficult stains, use a neutral pH cleaner, such as Soft Scrub Liquid Gel and a non-abrasive scrub pad.
- Be certain to rinse all areas thoroughly when applying any type of cleaning agent.

GENERAL PRECAUTIONS

- Always use a trivet or hot pad under hot cookware or dishes. Your countertop can tolerate moderately hot temperatures for brief periods of time. Prolonged exposure will result in discoloring or other types of damage.
- Be cautious when exposing your countertops to any chemicals or solvents. Many common household cleaners may harm the surface. Avoid chemicals that contain trichloroethylene or methylene chloride, such as paint removers and furniture strippers.
- Do not cut directly on the surface because it may scratch. Deep scratches and chips are not repairable.
- Products containing oils or powders may leave residue. Try rinsing immediately with water to neutralize the effect.
